This step by step guide shows the process involved in fitting Frostbrite onto a glass pane, an ideal solution for delivering privacy without sacrificing the natural light.

This design features a subtle diamond motif to help add an extra element to the window whilst giving the impression of classic frosted glass.

Card over the design using the Squeegee supplied to increase the bond between the application tape and Frostbrite film

2.

Pull off the backing sheet whilst checking all the elements of the design come off the backing sheet and stay on the application tape

Spray the film so it is entirely covered with the soapy water

4.

Before beginning installation, ensure your glass is as clean as possible. Next spray the entire pane with the soapy water before applying the film

5.

Take the film to the window making sure you keep it taut, allow the film to flow onto the glass and slide into position

6.

Spray the back of the film before squeegeeing over it with the plastic card supplied with your order

7.

Work from the top pushing any bubbles out to the edges, whilst ensuring the film doesn't move, you can repeat this process again to ensure all water is removed. Then leave to dry for 24 hours

Once dried for 24 hours, spray the application tape lightly and leave to soak for 5 minutes. Slowly peel off the application tape making sure you keep it close to the window, this will then reveal the design 9.

Finally wipe off any remaining water from the film and the frame being especially careful around the edges of any cut outs not to lift the film

Frostbrite®

Here at The Window Film Company we offer a vast range of frosted patterns, allowing you to quickly and easily create an eye-catching feature from your glazing and windows.

The designs are computer cut from our professional standard Frostbrite frosted film, which once applied to your windows will give the appearance of acid-etched or sand-blasted glass. The frosted areas will provide privacy, whilst still allowing a good level of natural light to pass through. Vision will be possible through the patterned parts of the film – these sections are computer cut and removed to create the pattern.

The extensive range of designs is available to view in this brochure with the entire collection online, with each order created to your exact size specifications. You have the option to choose the position of the design for each panel you order; customisation is part of the simple online ordering process.

With over 140 designs available, this brochure will guide you through a selection of our favourite designs ranging from botanical shapes to linear themes and intricate patterns.

Botanical Beauty

With the natural world being a key source of inspiration for home decoration, explore our wide range of botanically themed Frostbrite window film.

From soft florals, to trailing leaves, long grasses and tree motifs, there is sure to be a design to suit your style and taste.

Available as either a singular pattern or linear formation, these designs will bring the best of the outdoors into your home.

Motifs

Singular symbols or subtle border designs are a fantastic way of adding an element of style to your windows whilst delivering a contemporary privacy solution; all achieved without blocking or sacrificing natural light.

A huge variety of designs are available to choose from with the option of customising your film by selecting the position or orientation of your chosen pattern. Circular forms, geometric prints and art-deco symbols are just a taste of the motif based designs available from The Window Film Company's Frostbrite range.

Intricate

If a more elaborate design is to your taste, then look to the selection of intricate patterns from the Frostbrite range. Ideal for giving the classic appearance of sandblasted or acid-etched glass, these films will add a touch of beauty and glamour to your windows without the high end price tag.

From sweeping swirls, to polka dots and striking damasks, these elegant designs will inject a sophisticated look to your décor.

Linear

An everlasting trend in home décor, linear patterns are a subtle yet attractive way of adding interest to windows, furniture, flooring, fabrics and wall coverings.

A simple statement, a linear pattern will draw the eye and help create the feeling of space, perfect for small areas.

Plain

As well as single and bay windows, plain Frostbrite film is also ideal for a run of patio doors and conservatories with full length windows. Consider installing a run of plain frosted film along the bottom of the panels, creating a false mid-rail to not only give you more privacy but also to create an appealing design element in the room. Use bands of film at the top to create a graduated effect for extra flair or opt for a block design in each panel for ultimate privacy.

Interior Glass

For interior schemes, internal glazed doors or glass fronted kitchen cupboards can be given a new lease of life with frosted film. Words such as 'kitchen', 'bathroom' or 'laundry' can be cut from the film to depict the room's use, whilst outlines of kitchen utensils or crockery are a fun way to show what can be found in each cupboard.

Revamp old tired furniture pieces such as glass fronted tall boys with frosted film to add a new lease of life to the glass – the perfect DIY project.

Practical Films

As well as decorative designs, The Window Film Company also offers an impressive portfolio of functional films that will benefit your home in a multitude of ways. From mitigating against excess heat and dealing with glare or fading issues, the practical film collection also offers safety solutions for glass by preventing injuries and making it more visible. These improvements will not come at the cost of home enjoyment as the majority of films will not block the natural light or obscure any exterior view.

Solar Control

Protecting your home from the glare, or heat caused by strong sunlight can be a particular concern for homeowners with large expanses of glass (such as conservatories). Windows and glass panels can lead to rooms overheating, whilst the glare can make it hard to read or focus on screens. In addition, the sun's UV rays can result in fading, causing damage to flooring, furniture and other belongings.

Installing Solar Control films directly onto the glass or polycarbonate roof means that excess temperature and glare will be reduced, as well as almost eradicating the threat of UV damage - rejecting 99% of UV rays that hit the glass. Solar control film still allows natural daylight into the room leaving you to enjoy uninterrupted views through your windows while reducing the UV rays. Available in three different finishes, specially adapted for consumer's individual requirements, each film has unique properties.

Supertint® (available for glass or polycarbonate roofs):

Use: the most effective film for preventing heat glare and fading and is perfect for south facing conservatories where the user spends time reading, sewing or working at the computer.

Total solar energy rejected = 77%
Glare reduction = 80.6%
UV light rejected = 99%

Climate Ultra®:

Use: ideal for conservatories or glass rooms where the user is concerned by the external appearance of their home - Climate Ultra is almost virtually undetectable once installed.

Total solar energy rejected = 43%
Glare reduction = 24%
UV light rejected = 99%

Clear UV Film:

Use: Completely see through, Clear UV film is the optimum film for owners wishing to protect furnishings from fading, but not requiring high levels of protection from heat. Also recommended for people suffering from acute sensitivity to UV light.

Total Solar Energy Rejected = 20%
Glare reduction = 6.1%
UV light rejected = 99.8%

Safety

Glass in the home is beneficial from an aesthetic and functional standpoint. Glazing provides a source of natural light as well as a view of the outside, but windows and doors can be accountable for a lot of injuries in the home, especially when it comes to younger children.

Glass is a fragile material and unless the glazing meets safety standards, it can fracture into sharp and potentially dangerous shards. Replacing all the glass in your home can be an expensive exercise, especially if you need to update all your windows and doors, however there is an easy solution that won't cost the earth.

Safety film holds the glass in the frame in the event of breakage, preventing it from falling in on itself and causing injury. The clear nature of the film means that safety is achieved without making any aesthetic sacrifices.

Available in a range of thicknesses, which bring the glass up to current BS standard BS6206 Class A and B, the film is regularly used in schools and workplaces to ensure the safety of the buildings' occupants.

Manifestation

Glass Manifestation is designed to be applied to glass windows, doors and partitions with the primary function of making the glass visible.

Large expanses of clear glass can often be difficult to detect, making them potentially hazardous. Glass manifestation is placed at strategic locations on the glass, the contrast between the manifestation and the glazing making it easy to spot, preventing potential accidents.

Glass manifestation is traditionally created from Frostbrite frosted film which provides a classic sandblasted, acid-etched effect, delivering a contemporary, stylish manifestation solution. A range of standard designs are available, including dots, squares and simple bands, and whilst these designs are popular, The Window Film Company is also able to provide fully bespoke manifestations.

Seasonal Designs

Often overlooked when it comes to seasonal decorating, windows and glass can actually be a fantastic way of injecting some fun and creativity into your seasonal schemes. Frostbrite and White Printed films are perfect for giving your home an eye-catching look for all your favourite holidays such as Christmas, Easter, Valentine's Day and even Halloween.

Not just confined to windows, interior doors can be given a festive makeover with these playful designs, ideal for spooky Halloween parties or Christmas gatherings.
